Southern European countries relations with Japan during the Early Modern Period

どのようなゼミか

This course was conceptualized towards building a whole range of new information on the Southern European countries relations with Japanese during the 16th and 17th centuries. This course aims to use a large number of documents in Portuguese, Spanish, Italian, French, Latin, Ladino providing an opportunity of reconstructing the historical memories. We will also be providing an innovative approach to research which will make it possible for students to identify different historical periods and understand their role in the production of Southern European historical knowledge about Japan during the 16th and 17th centuries.

Helps students to learn, to think critically about the historical processes that have shaped the Early Modern world, mainly in Europe and the West.

Students will learn to:

- Distinguish and characterize significant European, and Asian historical periods.
- Describe events and developments in the history of multiple European and Asian societies in terms of continuity and change.
- Understand interpretive debates about the past.
